Short Bio:

John DeRosa is a high school math teacher in New Jersey. He holds a bachelor's degree in Math education from The College of New Jersey and a Master's degree in Mathematics from Montclair State University. Through involvement in an on-campus apologetics group during his undergraduate years, he found resources for navigating many issues. His interest in apologetics never left, and he created Classicaltheism.com to equip others to defend Catholic Christian ideas in conversation.

Topics I Discuss:

- Answering Atheist Slogans in Conversation
- Arguments for the Existence of God
- What is Classical Theism and Why Believe It?
- Making Sense of Divine Simplicity, Immutability, and Eternity
- The Problem of Evil and Suffering
- The Problem of Divine Hiddenness
